MAY 14 Posted by ocpnewsarchive

SAN JOSE, Calif. – In a dramatic move that illustrates how cloud computing has altered the data center landscape, Microsoft is opening up the server and rack designs that power its vast online platforms and sharing them with the world. Microsoft has joined the Open Compute Project and will be contributing specs and designs for the cloud servers that power Bing, Windows Azure and Office 365. The company will discuss its plans tomorrow in the keynote session of the Open Compute Summit in San Jose.

As Facebook Turns 10, Zuckerberg Wants to Change How Tech Industry Works

JAN 28 Posted by ocpnewsarchive

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Mark Zuckerberg was in his element. Mr. Zuckerberg, whose social network turns 10 years old next week, spoke Tuesday at a meeting of the Open Compute Project. Open Compute is an initiative that Facebook started three years ago to help big computing centers add the kind of cost cuts and efficiency gains that open-source software — where programmers share ideas and code across company, university and even national boundaries — to single computer servers and Web management.

May 16, 2014

 SINGAPORE: Singapore Telecommunications Ltd's \(SingTel\) fourth-quarter net profit climbed 4% from a year earlier but came in shy of analysts' expectations, hurt by unfavourable exchange rates and a lacklustre performance from its group enterprise business. Earnings at overseas businesses, which now make up 40% of the company's profits, were hit by a slide in the value of the Australian dollar, rupiah and Indian rupee against the Singapore dollar. Its net profit would have risen 13% in constant currency terms.
